About the Cover...

The vignette on the cover appeared on the $50 denomination bills of both the first and second charter period.

These notes were issued from 1861 until 1922, being legal tender to the present time.

During this period many 50 and 100 dollar bills were used in commerce. With the coming of heavier dependence on banks and checking accounts, these bills largely faded from the scene.

This note comes from a period when the old, large-size currency was heavy with elaborate designs and widely varied vignettes.

Here we see one of the early attempts to incorporate Americana into our monetary system. Symbolism has been used traditionally to denote American attributes on our money but here an historical event is portrayed on paper money.

The bill pictured is in the collection of A. P. (Del) Bertschy of Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

What we hear from our readers

Editor:

In the November "Coin Press" you wasted a whole two pages on discussing the 1804 dollar.

As you know, this is a coin that none of us could ever hope to own so why even talk about it?

Sincerely,
Fred Markess
New Jersey

Most of us couldn't hope to own a space missile either, but that doesn't stop us from talking about them—Ed.

Editor:

Editor:

In the length of time that I have subscribed to the "Coin Press," this is the first time that we readers have had to be subjected to such items as "Clothed with Chastity."

In this article, there were only two meager paragraphs concerned with coins, while the rest pertained to Lady Godiva's naked ride.

My dear sir, do you mean to say that you can't find better writing material to put into a coin magazine?

Let's not get away from the coin issue.

Sincerely,
Leonard DeRosa, Jr.
Stratford, Conn.

We thought that some of our readers might be interested in the historic value of older coins as well as in the investment value of modern pieces. We still think so.

Editor:

I received my copy of "Coin Press" and thank you. Several articles are well worth the subscription price.

Usually numismatic publications neglect paper currency. You have two or three informative articles on paper.

However, if I may, there is an error in your Demand Note story. You show the reverse of $5 and say this design was used "on later bills."

This reverse was used only on this Demand Note.

Saw your interesting piece about Wisconsin depression scrip in 1933. In Texas we had "panic scrip" of 1893, 1907 and 1933. But you know how Texas brags!

The NUMISCOPE

With key circulated coins getting scarcer and scarcer, it now becomes necessary to look over more and more coins. The NUMISCOPE has solved your problem and speeds examination, accepts or rejects coins at your will and wraps and counts them for you! All in one simple operation! No turning the coins as you see both sides at the same time! If you are looking for an aid to checking coins, don't be misled by gadgets!

There is ONLY ONE

THE NUMISCOPE

First Completely Automatic Coin Checker

The October 20th edition of a National Publication carried a story about it. THE NUMISCOPE is the only instrument on the market that lets you see both sides of the coin at the same time. It is the only one that counts and wraps the unwanted coins for you.

If you had super eyesight you could check up to 3,000 coins per hour. The speed depends upon you. Over two million coins were checked by the original model featured in various national publications without a breakdown, other than light bulbs and it is still going strong checking about $1,000.00 worth of coins a week in cents, nickels, dimes and quarters.

Special tools for closing one end of the wrapper in seconds for cents, nickels and dimes goes with the machine. It operates on 110 volts (house current) and also has batteries for emergency use in your car or away from electricity.

It is the only complete and original first automatic viewer on the market. It is built like a cash register. It is not a plastic proposition! It is made of cast aluminum throughout. It is finished in wrinkle finish either in black or platinum grey at your option.

You hardly move your head to see both sides of the coin clearly, of the same size, and you rest while checking. Your hands are always on the slide bar which is the control to take or reject coins. All you move is your hands with a wrist motion. You rest on your elbows.

As an extra aid for speed, accuracy and economy we also make the three heavy cast aluminum trays which are as much as the sorted coins are placed in their proper place to accumulate until you have a roll of them. That is, one for each mint and each tray takes the past current fifty years up to 1961 starting with 1911. That means that you can take care of 150 dates. At a glance you know where they are. They are cross indexed. Expensive? No!

THE NUMISCOPE IS MADE ON ORDER ONLY!

You will be the envy of any collector who doesn't own one. Users have sent in letters via air mail to tell us the machine is "CHOICE." One called in long distance from Kansas City to tell us he "was tickled pink" with it. Another said it was a "Masterpiece of ingenuity." Don't you think that you should be the FIRST in your area to own one? It eats up a bag full in no time at all! Also excellent for grading coins due to the uniform illumination.

From The Back Room

"... there came wise men from the East to Jerusalem saying, 'Where is He . . . ?'"

It is always pictured as a cold, winter night, icy wind moaning through the swaying olive trees and snow covering the sheep and shepherds lying on the ground.

Camels plodding through the night, ridden by masters driven by a desire to follow a star.

And when they had found the object of their thousand mile search, "... they presented unto Him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

Perhaps it takes a numismatic to abstract this from all the other connotations of Christmas, but it is entirely possible; probable, in fact, that the gold given to the little King was in the form of coins.

Coins of that very type are probably in collections today—a tangible evidence of an advanced society.

Sometimes it's boring to read history of the ages but it is something else when you hold the stuff of history and read reality rather than a man's interpretation.

An historian will tell us about the past but in coins we can see the past.

Those ancient coins are round for a functional reason: a circle cast more easily, handled more easily and proved the least surface for its bulk.

The fact that a precious metal was used tells us that society recognized value and that science was able to isolate various elements.

A portrait shows two things: that a man had distinguished himself among his fellows in a specialized area and that another man, a sculptor, was able to use his talents in a specialized manner.

The existence of the coins indicates a need for a medium of exchange and the fact that these coins are fairly common today points to the ancients' method of storing money as a reserve of purchasing power: Instead of banking, they hoarded their coins and they're still being turned up.

The gap between today and the day of those Eastern wise men seems centuries wide in prose or poetry.

But for one who participates in the greatest of all hobbies, the prized possession of an old coin can telescope 2,000 years of human life into a moment of pleasure.

Chester Krause

Cover Story

It was an unpleasant Christmas

but it marked a turning point in the fortunes of a small struggling nation.

General Howe, the British commander, had no doubt about the outcome of the situation. He was totally secure in the knowledge that the American forces would soon dissolve into the ranks of citizenry.

So sure was he that he left New Jersey under the care of two strong forces and returned to New York for the Holiday.

But there was one man who was quite as sure as Howe that the situation would not have a disastrous outcome for the Americans.

George Washington was one of the small group who huddled together against the biting winter wind. He had planned to attack the British strongholds with his complete force of 6,000 men.

But here it was nearly time for the river crossing, and the officers in charge of two of his three forces had failed him.

There was only one recourse. He must take his 2,400 men, across the Delaware and make a surprise attack on the hired Hessian troops.

The Hessians, like their commander, General Howe, were sure the Americans were either cowering in their rude shelters or high-tailing it for home.

It was a night of revelry in Trenton for these foreign soldiers far from home on a cherished holiday. They had neither the inclination nor the ability to return the skillful attack pressed by Washington and his ragged band of volunteers.

After a couple of hours of confused street fighting, Howe's subordinate, General Rahl, was killed and the Hessian regulars surrendered—1,000 men with arms and ammunition.

This debacle brought General Cornwallis with 8,000 men to Trenton immediately. He skirmished with Washington and decided to wait overnight "to bag the old fox."

But the Old Fox turned the trick. During the night, the muddy roads froze hard and Washington, leaving his campfires burning brightly, led his men around Cornwallis' rear guard. At daybreak, the Americans tore into the three British regiments at Princeton, scattered their resistance and picked up more arms and ammunition.

It wasn't a pleasant way to spend a Christmas holiday but the outcome of the two days' work was a turning point in the war.

All Americans took heart at the victories. When spring came, recruits came to Washington's camp in droves and, though Valley Forge was still to come, the army became a serious fighting force from then on.

But what may have been just as important as either of the other two effects was that foreign sympathizers to the cause of American independence were strongly encouraged.

And it is extremely doubtful that without the help of these well-wishers from across the sea there would ever have been any United States of America.

But the designers of the note from which the vignette on the cover was taken were right—they honored the man who brought the event to pass and who, almost singlehandedly, made it possible for our nation to exist.

Icy winds whipped freezing spray off the surface of the Delaware River as the little group of men stood sheltered by a clump of trees.

They were looking across the river, watching the chunks of ice float past, wondering if the plan would work.

The war had reached its darkest hour. The colonists had been badly beaten time after time, they had been pushed back and bullied out of the way, troops had melted away as they marched and now, Christmas day, 1776, it looked as if there was no way out.

How would you like to be able to issue money that would be readily accepted by the people you offered it to?

And if this weren't enough, how'd you like to levy taxes which would be paid without murmur or question?

An impossible situation, you say. If it could be, there would be some sort of a joker in connection with it.

The truth is that this situation did exist—in the United States. And, well, maybe there was a sort of joker involved, but a serious joker. He called himself Emperor Norton.

But before we talk about his money and taxes, let's go back to the beginning.

Joshua Abraham Norton could hardly boast an aristocratic lineage. Supposedly born in London either in 1818 or 1819, Norton was the son of an English Jew of the working class who left England in 1820 with 4,000 English colonists to settle in what is now the Union of South Africa.

John Norton, the father, was both a farmer and a trader and he soon became an important man in the development of Port Elizabeth, then called Algoa Bay.

Joshua, with only the background of employment in his father's store, failed in business in 1844 and, upon the death of his parents, left South Africa to retrieve his fortunes.

San Francisco seemed to Norton the ideal place to restore his position in life. A more wild and wooly town would be impossible to imagine. The harbor was full of abandoned ships deserted by their crews in a mad rush for the gold fields.

Prices of all goods and services had skyrocketed. Eggs sold for the modest price of one dollar each, board and room went to $200 a month. Laundry was done for $16 per dozen pieces, common labor was paid one dollar an hour and skilled labor received as much as $20 a day.

The El Dorado, a canvas tent of moderate size, was rented by gamblers for a yearly price of $40,000.

The market for goods was alternately glutted and starved, a situation made to order for wild speculation.

San Francisco was just an overgrown tinderbox and fires were the order of the day. Just before Christmas, 1849, 50 or more houses burned in the business district at a loss of $1,000,000.

On May 4, 1850, another blaze destroyed four million dollars worth of property. The next fire was in June and a fourth followed in September.

These weren't just good old accidental fires, they were the careful work of incendiaries.

Norton lost his office building in one blaze which raged for 10 hours, claiming 20 lives. Eighteen blocks, parts of half a dozen others and nearly 2,000 homes were consumed in the holocaust. The business district was completely wiped out.

Financial loss was estimated at 12 million dollars.

As if she didn't have enough native born rascals to plague her, San Francisco also suffered at the hands of the Sydney Ducks, an Australian penal element of un-holy toughness, meaner than a barrel full of wildcats.

Finally stung to action, the enraged citizens organized a Vigilance Committee which dealt promptly with the criminal element in a not very gentle manner.

During the first part of his San Francisco business career, Norton was quite successful. He was all things to all men, took an active part in civic enterprise, was affable and generally well liked.

But the San Francisco of his day, well stocked with greedy speculators, finally inspired him in the same direction and his attempt to get a corner on the rice supply led to his downfall.

The price of this staple had fluctuated wildly. In June, of one year the price was four cents a pound. By September it had risen to 32 cents but then ships came in loaded with rice and the price fell to normal.

In December the commodity again became scarce and it was reported in the papers that any further exportation of rice from China was forbidden.

Perhaps Norton took the newspaper reports too literally. He, William Sim and others joined in a speculative venture. The first purchase of 200,000 pounds of rice was bought for 12½ cents a pound. At least one more, possibly two cargoes of rice were added to this.

Just when a fortune was in sight, more ships arrived and rice went begging at three cents a pound.

On August 29, 1856, in the 12th District Court, Norton filed an insolvency petition and his 7-year business career in San Francisco came to an end.

He listed his debts at $55,811.73 and his losses at $45,000. His estimated assets of $15,000 were sold by the sheriff to satisfy his creditors.

With businessman Norton out of the way, it was time for Emperor Norton to make his appearance.

On a busy Saturday morning, the editor of the San Francisco Bulletin had an unusual visitor. He was neat, well dressed, about 40 years old and he wanted something he had written published.

Told that publication would be considered, the man bowed politely, turned and walked out of the office.

When the editor got around to reading the manuscript, he chuckled aloud. Why not publish it? Other things of equal or even greater craziness had been published.

Many citizens of San Francisco were astonished, amused and then puzzled by the curious proclamation they read:

The Norton scrip below shows an interesting mixture of symbolism and Americana. The goddess Athena holds the American flag. Norton was the first to use Athena on money in the United States. Another use of the goddess is shown at left on the Panama Pacific $50 gold piece. The Norton scrip was printed in 1876, and the Pan-Pacific coin came in 1915.

"At the peremptory request and desire of a large majority of the citizens of these United States, I Joshua Norton, formerly of Algoa Bay, Cape of Good Hope, and now for the last nine years and ten months past of San Francisco, California, declare and proclaim myself Emperor of these United States; and by virtue of the authority thereby in me vested, do hereby order and direct the representatives of the different states of the Union to assemble in Musical Hall of this city on the first day of February next, then and there to make such alterations in the existing laws of the Union as may ameliorate the evils under which the country is laboring and thereby cause confidence to exist, both at home and abroad, in our stability and integrity."

It was signed, "Norton I, Emperor of the United States."

From this point on, the career of the Emperor takes on more than a little of Alice in Wonderland.

Russo-Asiatic bank note of 1917, issued in Manchuria.

The collector of world paper currency frequently picks up an obscure note and experiences the immediate reaction that something is familiar even though he can swear he never has seen the particular bill before.

He probably is right. Many of the denomination devices, elements of scrollwork and other components of bank note design – even vignettes – receive repeated use on the bills of many nations.

The fine locomotive steaming into the picture on the Chihuahua 50 pesos of 1913 is a good example. The collector who owns both bills (both are somewhat scarce) will recognize the same rolling stock on the several denominations of the Russo-Asiatic Bank release of 1917, issued in Manchuria.

Both notes, one sees by the marginal inscriptions, are the work of the distinguished firm of American Bank Note Company, New York, yet this is not, as it turns out, an instance of reuse of a stock vignette.

The locomotive on the Manchurian bill is shown with a quite different background, and a magnifying glass reveals that the entire vignette has been re-engraved. It is clear, however, that the engravers worked from the same original photograph. The Victorian garb of the passengers on the Mexican bill suggest that the locomotive vignette may have seen even earlier service.

Cleo
Egypt's Charmer

By Arthur F. Giere

She charmed Caesar, Antony, many of the greats. For centuries Cleopatra has been the envy of womankind. Her beauty assailed, facts speak for themselves.

CLEOPATRA ON COINS

Probably no other celebrated good looking woman of ancient times has had her image impressed upon so many different coins as is the case of the second wife of Marcus Antonius.

Her name was Cleopatra, her lover called her Cleo.

Egyptian tetradrachms illustrated her often in company with Antony, while some ancient Roman and Greek coins also were embellished with the image of her beautiful face.

Historians have claimed her as the most alluring and beautiful queen of ancient times. Plutarch wrote that it was a pleasure merely to hear the sound of her voice.

She had won many names: "Wizard of the Nile," "The Fabulously Alluring Woman," "The Dazzling Beauty," and "The Serpent of the Nile."

Five noted French tragedians as well as the celebrated English poets Dryden, Shakespeare and Daniel are among the great authors who memorialized this enchanting queen in their writings.

Cleopatra was born 69 B.C., a daughter of the Egyptian king Ptolemy Auletes. In line with family custom, she married her brother, Ptolemy XII.

He drowned in the Nile.

She then married her younger brother, eleven years old, and at the same time became one of the mistresses of Julius Caesar. She gave birth to a son sired by Julius.

Then she poisoned her husband and became sole ruler of her native country.

Cleopatra met Antony when she was 25 years old, upon his urgent invitation. She ascended the Cydnus in a gilded barge with oars of silver and sails of purple silk. She sat under a golden canopy, arrayed as the goddess Aphrodite and surrounded by beautiful boys and girls who represented cupids and graces.

Enslaved by her enchantment and charmed by her brilliant wit, Antony forgot ambition, honor and country.

Cleopatra knew how to please the vanity of Marc Antony. On fishing excursions she would employ skin-divers to fasten enormous fishes to her husband's hook.

This lady was a first class show woman too. At the close of a banquet, in order to win a wager that she could consume a meal worth thousands of dollars, she dissolved a pearl of fabulous worth in a cup of vinegar and then carelessly swallowed the whole costly potion, proclaiming she drank it to the health of the Triumvirs and saying, "My draft to Antony shall exceed in value the whole banquet."

Rabelais said that because of this incident Cleopatra was a "crier of onions," in the shades of Hell.

"Unio" is the Latin word for both pearl and onion and Rabelais' poem refers to Cleopatra giving her pearl (onion) to Antony in a draft of wine.

Marc Antony finally committed suicide. Cleopatra then sought to enslave Octavius with her charms.

She failed and instead she became his prisoner.

Tradition says that she ordered a splendid feast to be prepared. Then she locked herself in a room of the mausoleum which she had erected near the Temple of Isis and an asp concealed in a basket of figs and flowers was smuggled to her past the Roman sentries.

This asp she caused to bite her arm — an interesting method of suicide. She was not quite 39 years old when her body was interred near that of Antony.

Thus her extraordinary career was finished at an age when most careers begin. Her name, Cleopatra, means glory to her country.

Coins bearing her image are not difficult to obtain so here, numismatics, is a coin with a story.

As to Cleo's Beauty

Two decades ago, the A.N.A. heard a speech in Baltimore which showed Cleopatra as an ugly wench. Here is a rebuttal by a newspaperman of that day.

"For nearly nineteen centuries the world has labored under the belief that Egypt's queen, the famous daughter of Ptolemy Auletes, was one of the loveliest of women.

"Poets have sung of her, artists have pictured her, writers have searched their souls to give expression to their thoughts of her.

"And now a lot of ungallant old duffers get up and tell us we are all wrong.

"The iconoclasts are members of the American Numismatic Association. In convention at Baltimore they declared she was ugly and they said they could prove her ugliness with coins bearing Cleo's portraits—portraits which the queen herself ordered and approved.

"They argue that, being a woman, she certainly would not have approved the portraits unless they were good likenesses. And these portraits show Cleopatra with irregular features, big ears, small eyes and a scrawny neck."

The writer quotes a passage from Shakespeare where Cleopatra speaks of her "salad days." Then he continues.

"If numismatists were ordinary human beings and not musty old, self-centered creatures they would know that ladies with big ears, small eyes and scrawny necks have no salad days.

"Cleopatra ugly! The woman ugly of whom Enobarbus said, 'Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety!'

"Ridiculous!"

The Story of a DIE BREAK

By E. Rasmussen

In the larger, sturdier dies employed in making our large coins, die-breaks appear to be exceedingly uncommon. This may not actually be so in the coinage department at the mints, but the Inspectors (God bless their vigilant souls) have kept the evidence well out of sight.

Nevertheless, a conspicuous die-break exists in the 1957D half dollar. It causes the bust of Franklin to be joined with the R in TRUST.

The break is shown as it occurred in several stages.

Apparently a portion of this die became a bit over-tempered or "brittled" in the tempering process. Under the heavy usage such dies are subjected to, the over-hardened portion appears to have chipped out bit by bit, creating a Bust to Trust variety.

It being said with some degree of truthfulness that variety is the spice of life, this Bust to Trust variety is a bit of welcome "numismatic spice" in the monotony of dates that, at times, can be a bit wearisome.

Finds, Facts and Questions

From F. J. Atkinson, Terrace, British Columbia: "In a bundle of new one dollar bills received from the Central Bank, the cashier here found four bills in sequence with the right hand serial numbers misprinted.

"He saved the four with the two on each side in the sequence.

"Serial numbers on the right side read GM 7577850 through 53, while those on the left are 757-850.

"This," says Mr. Atkinson, "would indicate that the numbering device on the press was trying to turn over from seven to eight and after four bills, returned to the proper setting."

Roy G. Buck, Kalispell, Montana, reports finding an 1889-O silver dollar with the reverse one quarter turned. He considers it quite rare and wonders if it could be valuable.

The reason for this phenomenon is that in earlier days, the dies were allowed to "float." That is, they weren't anchored to keep them from turning, as they are now. Thus, it is quite common to find rotated dies on many older coins.

Is this coin valuable?

As in the case of many minor varieties, this coin will be worth something to you only if you can find a collector who would be willing to give you something for it.

"I have one Lady Godiva half penny," writes Theodore Scholler of Niagara Falls, N. Y. "I read the story in the November issue and wondered what this coin might be worth."

Naturally, the worth of this coin will depend to a large extent on its condition but its value may range anywhere from two to five dollars. However, there is no fixed price on items of this type, so the value you receive will also depend on other factors—whom you sell it to, for one.

In a letter from David Kulman we came across a question which has been asked by several others. "I am a new collector. Kindly advise me how one goes about receiving an ANA number from the American Numismatic Association?"

Pet Theories about coins. Is it authentic, is there something about it that nobody but you knows? Why not share your ideas with fellow numismatists?

Historical Background of coins. Particularly if that history is connected with an interesting person.

Fascinating Personalities connected with numismatics. People who are doing something different with coins or for whom numismatics is doing something.

Cartoons. If you have a flair for art and can combine it with witty punchlines about coins and collectors, get it in print.

Anything Else you want to see — tell us about it!

FINDS, FACTS AND QUESTIONS

David, here is your answer: In order to get an ANA number, you must become a member of the American Numismatic Association, the association which is the recognized central agency for American collectors.

Just like any other association, the ANA has procedures for joining. This is the way it is done: The requisite for membership is that the applicant have a sincere interest in numismatics and be more than 16 years of age.

If the applicant is 21 or over, he must be proposed for membership by a member of the Association or give two professional or business references and give the information requested on the application blank.

Dues in the Association are $5 a year plus a two dollar initiation fee.

Mrs. Dorothy D'Emilia wrote, "I recently found a 1930D Mercury dime. It is very interesting since no dimes were minted at Denver that year.

"I brought it to the neighborhood bank and they found it to be a genuine coin."

She also enclosed a glossy photograph of both sides of the coin.

Mrs. D'Emilia, it is very difficult to give an opinion on a coin after seeing only a photograph. But there are two things I'd like to point out.

First, many banks are not equipped to give an accurate decision regarding the authenticity of a coin. I'll agree with the bank, on the face of it, that this is a "genuine coin" but whether it is an authentic 1930D is something else.

The other thing I want to mention is that just from the photograph it would seem that both the date and the mint mark are in a state of preservation which is not in keeping with the condition of the rest of the coin.

If you want further information, I suggest that you mail your coin, registered, to us for investigation.

B.U. Rolls, Supplies, Proof Sets

Wipe your glasses first! I don't think you'll believe our low prices. The radioactive fallout may be high, but the prices are low. Buy your Christmas gifts now. You'll save and you'll be glad you did. Proof sets mounted in proof holders make excellent gifts for the non-coin collector. Proof holders (2x6") are precision molded and cost $1.25. They are titled "United States Proof Sets." We mount your proof sets for you (we use gloves).

We also recommend the Whitman Bookshelf Album No. 9450. It houses 8 proof sets in original mint polyethylene envelope. And you see both sides! Only $3.50. Or one album complete with proof sets 1955 to 1961 including small date only $52.50.

To speed your order, (1) use appropriate coupon or write your order on a 3x5" index card, (2) mention Numismatic News (3) add for postage, (4) use appropriate department number. For B.U. rolls: Dept. R. Proof Sets: Dept. P, Supplies: Dept. S. (We sell all Whitman products). Inquiries: Dept. I. Combine code numbers for one or more departments. Example: Dept. RIP, for order of B.U. rolls, inquiries and order of proof sets.

Emperor Norton

other time, such a life as his would have been impossible and he would have been put in a place devoted to the ailing of wits.

But many businessmen, keenly sympathetic and well aware of his past, saw to it that he did not want for the necessities of life and he really asked for little more.

Although the businessman Norton may have been guilty of greed, nothing of this characteristic was to be seen in the character of the Emperor. Almost at once he was given a warm place in the generous heart of the city.

The Emperor was both an honorable and a useful citizen. Practically without exception, everybody liked him for he was one of the kindest of men.

Very fond of children, the Emperor frequently bestowed upon them small gifts of sweets. And often he gave to his small feminine friends the boutonniere from the lapel of his uniform with such courtliness that they could see themselves as royalty too.

The Emperor got on a street car one day and the driver, new to San Francisco, requested him to pay his fare.

The Emperor protested but, nevertheless, was compelled to pay.

Very indignant about the matter, he complained to the City Fathers. Cudgels were taken up for him and the erring driver was told brusquely that Norton was indeed the Emperor and that if the city employee valued his position he should henceforth show the Emperor the proper respect.

As near as we can tell by the records, he didn't have an enemy in the whole city.

To meet his immediate and pressing needs, the Emperor resorted to the use of scrip. Bonds of the Empire, the designation given to them by the Emperor, were neatly produced by accommodating printers, were dated, given serial numbers and were signed by the Emperor himself. All quite regular.

Notes he issued show a half-length picture of His Majesty on the right and on the left is either the Great Seal of California or a depiction of the goddess Athena with her shield in one hand and the Stars and Stripes in the other.

At the bottom of one 50-cent note appears: "Cuddy & Hughs, goddess appears twice on coins of the United States—both times after the issue of Norton's scrip.

The Panama-Pacific $50 gold piece of 1915 shows her helmeted head on its obverse and she is again depicted helmeted on the half-dollar commemorative of 1935, put out to honor the California-Pacific Exhibition of San Diego.

It would be interesting to know if the figure of Athena on his scrip was Norton's own idea.

Just how much scrip was put out is another unanswered question. But judging from the evidence at hand, it was quite a large amount. It is possible that his printers kept records of some kind relating to the scrip but if they did, they have long since been destroyed or lost.

But the scrip did not meet all his needs. Therefore the Emperor felt obliged to levy taxes. It was his belief that businessmen who acknowledged the Empire should pay least a small amount toward its maintenance.

So Norton purchased a large account book. In it he kept a list of names the amount he considered reasonable from each person and the dates when he expected payments to be made.

Almost invariably the taxes were 50 cents monthly, in some cases 25 cents and now and then a dollar. Upon payment of taxes, the Emperor gave a bond of the Empire as a receipt.

Three men of the literary world knew him well and liked him; Mark Twain, Bret Harte, and Robert Stevenson. There were a great many others, among them William Ralston, the kingpin of the San Francisco bankers. Ralston himself was a remarkable and unusual man and there is reason to suppose that he was one of the Emperor's financial angels.

At the time the Emperor walked the streets of his beloved city, a free lunch in connection with the numerous saloons was an accepted fact of life. And, since food was cheap, the lunches were not niggardly.

His Imperial Majesty wasn't above the provender so offered and frequently dined on this source of free provisions. Not that he was obliged to resort to such fare. Any restaurant or eating place in the city would gladly, and without charge, give him anything that he wished in the way of food.

Emperor Norton

He lived simply in an unpretentious boardinghouse and paid his board promptly at the end of each week.

Robert Stevenson one of the kindest of men, wrote about the Emperor in "The Wrecker:" "In what other city would a harmless madman who supposed himself Emperor . . . have been so fostered and encouraged? Where else would even the people of the streets have respected the poor soul's illusion?

"Where else would bankers and merchants have received his visits, cashed his cheques, and submitted to his small assessments? Where else would he have been suffered to attend and address the exhibition days of schools and colleges? Where else, in God's green earth, have taken his pick of restaurants, ransacked the bill of fare, and departed scathless?"

Except upon the subject of his aberration, the Emperor was of sound judgment and frequently showed an understanding which would do credit to any man. He opposed the death sentence given John Brown, the man of would-be slave insurrection fame, on the ground that he was unbalanced mentally.

Norton was greatly incensed by the administration scandals of President Grant and declared that Secretary of War Belknap, one of the worst offenders, should be severely punished.

He took up cudgels in defense of the Chinese at a time when it was highly unpopular to do so. A number of them had been hanged without the benefit of a trial and the Emperor declared it an outrage. All men, he said, without regard to race or color, were entitled to a fair hearing and justice.

To even begin to enumerate all of the unusual in the Emperor's life would need a book. He became the Protector of Mexico when the activity of Napoleon tried to foist Maximilian upon the Mexican people. He advocated the building of a bridge across the Golden Gate at a time when such a thing was not only looked upon as impossible then, but impossible forever.

Norton's end came with drama-

Mr. Money Penny and the Antique Show

By Jim Whalen

RECEPTIONIST: Hello, this is the Antique Show. Can I help you?

MR. MONEY: Yes. Could you tell me if you have Bourse tables at the show?

RECEPTIONIST: Is that like an end table? We have some very fine Chippendales and early American Highboys.

MR. MONEY: I am not interested in furniture. I have a Buffalo Head I would like to sell.

RECEPTIONIST: Is it stuffed?
MR. MONEY: Of course not. I'm a numismatist. I collect coins.

RECEPTIONIST: Oh I see. You're a parking meter attendant.

MR. MONEY: Look lady, a numismatist is a hobbyist.

RECEPTIONIST: Like hangs around Washington?

MR. MONEY: That's a lobbyist. Would you let me know if you have a table at the Show with some coins on it?

RECEPTIONIST: Oh yes, we have. It is right at the door where you pay admission. Why don't you drop in. Our show is really out of this world.

MR. MONEY: And that's where it should be. So long!

Emperor Norton

tic suddenness and he was mercifully spared the misery of a lingering death. On Thursday evening, January 8, 1880, while on his way to a meeting, the Emperor suddenly collapsed on the street and died in a few minutes, the victim of an attack of apoplexy.

His death was sincerely mourned and more than 10,000 people attended his funeral to pay a tribute of genuine love and respect.

How ironical! As a man of business he failed completely. But gone mad and saddled with a fixation as the Emperor Norton he became a success.

Put yourself in his place for a few moments. You enter a theatre and the audience respectfully rises until you have been seated.

Clothing? Tailors and haberdashers will be glad to have the chance to serve you.

Money? Men will honour your scrip and others pay the small taxes you say are due.

Announcements? Free of charge, they are readily printed by any paper of your choice.

Affection? Thousands of citizens hold you in sincere esteem.

On Saturday afternoon, June 30, 1934, the remains of the Emperor Norton were reburied in the Woodlawn Cemetery. Several hundred people attended the ceremony.

The shoulder-high monument is of red marble and if it reminds us of nothing else, it tells that in a world of cold business practice there is still a place for the warmth of human affection.

Importer of Gold Coins

Author THE GOLD REPORT

P. O. Box 88066, Houston 4, Texas

INVEST IN GOLD COINS

Fifty million frugal Frenchmen bought gold coins to protect their savings from inflation. Now Americans are doing it.

Why are they buying gold coins?

HERE'S WHY:

- (1) Money invested in gold coin is safe.
- (2) Gold coins are increasing in value. U. S. gold coins are no longer being minted, haven't been minted for a quarter of a century. Limited supply, increasing demand spells higher prices coming.
- (3) Gold price increase is very likely. Force of economic necessity will bring it about. The political and economic theories that point to a gold price increase are concisely set forth and backed with statistics in THE GOLD REPORT. Briefly it is this: Foreigners have claims against the U. S. gold reserve amounting to more than the gold reserve. Enough of these claims might be exercised at any moment to precipitate a run on the U. S. gold reserve. This run on gold could only be stopped by a gold price increase. (THE GOLD REPORT available from Author, price $1, see letterhead above. Complimentary copy on request.)

Back in 1932, during the first days of the Roosevelt New Deal, some people "in the know" or those who could "see the writing on the wall", converted their paper money into gold coins. These people made a killing. In 1934 the price of gold was marked up from $20.67 to $35 per ounce — an increase of 70% almost overnight. Evidently a lot of this gold found its way into safekeeping in the Swiss Banks. I do not know and cannot tell you the whole story of how so much U. S. gold coin wound up in the banks of Switzerland, but I can assure you that some of it is there.

It is my business to import gold coins from Switzerland for you at a very small mark-up. You can buy gold coins through me, usually at less overall cost than you could buy direct from the Swiss banks, because I buy and transport in larger quantity. I also hurdle the barriers of importing with the many uncertainties that are involved.

Before October 20, 1960 (that was the date when London Gold went to $41 per ounce) I imported gold coin from Zurich and sold it at a predetermined fixed price; but since that date, because of the fluctuating price, I have found that I can give the buyer a fairer price if the price is based on the cost of the coins in Zurich at the time the order is executed in Zurich. Therefore, I now buy in Zurich for you, and deliver the coins to you, for a fee, and as your agent.

Here is the way it works: I combine your order with a number of others, forward the money to Zurich in one large sum, buy in Zurich for you at a favorable large order price, ship the coins here by KLM air cargo in large enough quantities to get favorable rates. And I arrange for Customs entry by my Customs Broker who knows how to get the coins cleared expeditiously. Then I distribute the coins to the various buyers and make refunds to adjust for the cost of the coins against the money they had remitted. I submit Thermo-Fax copies of the Zurich bank invoices to verify prices paid. For this service I charge a fee, as shown on order blank, which varies from 3% to 8% according to the size of the order.

Orders to Zurich go out at least once per week, sometimes more often. The Zurich shipment of coins is back here and released from Customs within two weeks time after the order is airmailed from Houston. Therefore there should be no more than a two weeks delay from the time we receive your order until the shipment to you is made. I do keep about $25,000 worth of my own money continually in stock on hand or in transit (usually in transit), therefore I can usually ship small orders from stock, and many large orders within one week from date of receipt—but not always.

Please do not ask for certain years or mintmarks — but you may specify certain years that you do not want.

GUARANTEE: If you don't like the coins delivered to you, or if price is too high, I promise to repurchase your full order of coins if returned within 3 days of receipt, at 2% less than you paid. But you must return the full order, not just certain coins that you don't want.

QUALITY OF COINS: I cannot say for sure what grade of coins will be shipped in the future, but it is reasonable to assume they will be equivalent to the coins I have received in the past. These have been of the grades as shown on the order blank. I will fill your order with an average of the Zurich shipment. Please don't ask me to high grade the shipment for you — that wouldn't be fair to the other buyers.

ABOUT ME: I have been in the real estate business at this location for 14 years; but have been in the coin importing business less than two years, and have already imported over $1 million in coin. References: The Almeda State Bank, Houston 4, Texas.

By this method you can buy at the Zurich price, at a fair price; you will be buying in Zurich at the greatest gold coin market in the world. Let's do business now!

The Coin Chest

GENERAL REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

1. Classified advertising rates are four cents a word, $1.00 minimum order. Payment must be made before insertion. Address The Coin Chest, Box 274, Iola, Wisconsin.

2. Closing date for next month's issue will be the 15th of the previous month.

3. The right to edit all copy and to reject any ads which in their opinion, are unethical or objectionable. Transactions are based on good faith. Violations of ethics are grounds for refusal of further advertising.

4. This publication does not guarantee and it disclaims all knowledge of the right of seller or buyer to contract. Specific inquiries should be made if questions of minority or ownership are raised.

5. Blind ads are not acceptable. A post office box number may be used only if seller's residence or place of business is filed with the publisher.

6. Word count: Each coin is considered one word. Thus 1943PDS is three words. Initials or abbreviations are one word. Thus, J. H. Jones is three words, B.U. is two words. Hyphenated words count as two and name and address are included in the word count.

7. Although we do not demand advertising copy to be typewritten, we are not responsible for errors resulting from longhand copy.

8. All items must be properly described. The use of abbreviations as listed in The Coin Press Magazine shall be the standard.

9. All 1/4, 5, material described shall be graded as set forth in "A Guide to Grading U. S. Coins" by Brown and Dunn.

10. Grab-bag advertising will not be accepted. Copies, replicas, etc. should be submitted for review before an ad is placed.

11. We will endeavor to print only factory recommended prices for supplies and accessories. We will not accept cut-rate advertising.

12. Advertisers are asked to comply with these suggestions: immediate refund for coins returned within seven days of receipt, no trade considered final until both parties have received coins and both parties are satisfied (no answer within week of receipt to be considered acceptance), all coins to be in stock when advertising copy submitted.

13. Please include postage. For requests for information or quotations add include 15 to 20 cents for handling charges on small orders.

14. If you have reason to believe the party you are dealing with is using unfair practices, please notify this magazine.

We Present . . . A NEW OFFICIAL MEDAL

The 50th YEAR OF NAVAL AVIATION, 1911-1961

We have been designated as sole, national distributors of the official medal to commemorate the 50th year of Naval Aviation. The designs were approved by the Fiftieth Anniversary Project Staff of the Chief of Naval Operations.

This medal is the same 2 1/2" size as the previous, official medals distributed by our firm. It was struck by the Medallic Art Company from models of the well known sculptor, Paul Fjelde. Both the bronze and silver medals are boxed, with a printed, informative circular.

The silver medals are struck in pure silver having a fineness greater than .999. The issue of silver medals is limited to 5000 serially numbered pieces.

The official prices of the Naval Aviation medal are: The Bronze Medal $4.00; The Pure Silver Medal $30.00.

A COMPANION MEDAL

The U.S.S. Enterprise Medal that was struck last year makes a fitting companion piece to the Naval Aviation Medal — in size; in quality; in subject matter.

The U.S.S. Enterprise which was launched in 1960, is the greatest of all Navy vessels to employ Naval Aviation. It is not only a nuclear powered aircraft carrier, and the first of its kind; it is also the largest ship of any type in the world.

This official medal, which commemorates the launching, is offered at the original issue price, as follows:

The Bronze Enterprise Medal $4.00; The Pure Silver Enterprise Medal $30.00.

The issue of silver medals was limited to 5000 serially numbered pieces, and they are offered subject to being sold out.

ATTENTION COIN DEALERS: Established dealers are invited to send for our wholesale prices, using their business stationery and furnishing suitable credit references as to their commercial status.

ATTENTION COIN COLLECTORS: The above medal, as well as earlier issues, together with our publications, accessories and the Library of Coins, may be had at your local coin or stamp dealer, book or hobby shop or the Coin Departments of leading department stores.
